Thanks Jeff, that schedule seems right to me. And if we don't like the finish date, we should have started (the SAB process) sooner.

Dave:

The SAB is now working with the following draft schedule for the draft connectivity report.

I suggest that we time the release of the draft report for May 6, 2013. It is potentially a problem to release earlier in that SAB staff inform me that anyone that makes a public comments is ineligible to serve on the SAB.

Releasing May 6 with a 60-day public comment period, brings us to about July 6. That gives us a few weeks to summarize public comments prior to the SAB meeting.

Note: With this schedule, the final WOUS Connectivity report will not be available until March-April 2014.
